Public consultation on electronic documents for freight carriage

End of October 2017 the European Commission launched a public consultation to gather the views and concerns of businesses and other stakeholders on the use of electronic freight transport documents. The consultation will feed into an impact assessment and help the European Commission understand:

- why transport documents in electronic format are not as yet more widely used,
- how big the missed potential benefits are,
- which measures could support the wide use of electronic transport documents among all transport and logistics stakeholders and
- what potential impacts to expect from such measures.

This public consultation remains open 18 January 2018. All interested citizens, companies and organisations can contribute to this public consultation via an online questionnaire.
